

New Start Undergraduate Transfer Pathway (UTP)

Fresh start program

Tilghman International Center will admit students who demonstrated academic success in high school but were not provided the proper support or given the necessary tools to succeed in university. Students who are able to explain the causes of their academic struggles and can develop a plan to improve upon their mistakes deserve a second chance. These are the type of self-motivated students we want to see join our campus community.

Student support services

Drew's emphasis on personalized learning is complemented by small class sizes, fostering close connections between students and professors. Drew prides itself on providing individualized support through dedicated advisors, ensuring each student receives the attention they need to thrive. On top of guidance from advisors, Drew students have full access to an array of resources, including academic coaching and peer tutoring. Students receive support from the beginning of their journey at Drew through graduation.

Entry requirements[1]

- High school and university transcripts
- 2.75 high school GPA
- Dean's conduct report from the prior university (This can be requested by the student from their campus Dean of Students)[2]
- A personal statement explaining the reasons for your struggles at the prior institution
- English scores meeting the UTP entry requirements

"This program helps students by providing a better study experience and environment, which can help students integrate into the environment of living and learning at Drew University."

Yipeng
China

"Drew offers opportunities for students to receive personal care. This is one of the benefits of being at a university with a small campus. I have more opportunities to speak with my professors one-on-one during class instead of just emailing."

Dian
China

"Through coaching within the center and personal experiences, I have learned from my failures and about how to be responsible. As a result, I've successfully finished my courses. I have learned two things: how to better my life and perspective."
